DARING BURGLARY OF FERRELL'S STORE.

Thieves Entered from Front Door and Secured Merchandise and Money.

Early Wednesday morning the store of J. W. Ferrell on South Adams street was broken into and robbed of about $50 in merchandise and $30 in cash by two white men who, during their operations, threw a lighted match in a box of straw hats which destroyed two boxes of hats and damaged a quantity of other clothing before it was put out.

It was this fire that led to the discovery of the burglars. Policeman Matthews was on the opposite side of the street when he saw a blaze flare up in the rear of the store and a moment later a man came from the store and hurried up the street. Matthews called to him to stop but instead he ran and then the policeman drew his revolver and fired, at the same time giving chase. He pursued the man to the east side of the capitol where he disappeared.

In the meantime those on duty at Schoemaker's stables, just across the street, became aware of matters and hurried to check the flames, succeeding in this before they had gained any headway.

An effort was made to notify Mr. Ferrell of the robbery but no response could be gotten from the central office for several hours.

When daylight came a small portion of the stolen goods were picked up in the capitol grounds, in the streets and just inside the yard of a negro home near the residence of Sheriff Houston.

The thieves gained entrance to the store by breaking the front door glass, reaching inside and unfastening the spring lock. The principal portion of the loot was foodstuffs. This fact, with the crude methods of operation, shows that the guilty parties were more desperately hungry than following a regular occupation.

The officers are working on a clue that three white men seen loafing in town Tuesday afternoon are directly connected with the burglary.
